Peter,

"I have now decided to recuse myself from any existing or future investigations of any matter relating in any way to the campaigns for president of the United States."

That's what Attorney General Jeff Sessions said on March 2.

Just two months later, he betrayed that promise, making the recommendation to President Trump to fire FBI Director James Comey, a decision plainly related to the investigation of the Trump campaign's dealings with Russia.

In betraying that commitment, Sessions betrayed America.

We need our top law enforcement officer to be independent, to be honest, to hold the powerful accountable and to respect the institutions of democracy.

Sessions has failed on each of these counts.

Jeff Sessions never should have been confirmed as Attorney General, and in his short tenure, he's made it patently clear that he is not qualified for the office.

With a loud enough demand, Sessions can be forced out.

For democracy,

Robert Weissman
