Denver International Airport Saves $2.5 Million Annually on Environmental Initiatives: Find Out How

Hear how Scott Morrissey, Director of Environmental Services at Denver International Airport, manages day-to-day operations using a management system, which actively addresses environmental and sustainability issues.

We recently interviewed Scott about his initiatives and his upcoming presentation, read the full article here: How to Manage Environmental Risk in a Complex Organization: Tips from DIA. (<http://www.environmentalleader.com/2016/03/16/how-to-manage-environmental-risk-in-a-complex-organization-tips-from-dia/>)

Who Should Attend

CEOs, Presidents, Vice Presidents, Directors and Managers:

- who are responsible for environmental management, sustainability, EHS, energy, cost savings, business value, process improvement, increased productivity and reducing waste;
- who are ambitious to enhance their knowledge, grow their network, and advance their career;
- who would like to return to work with, the know-how and the skills to make a positive impact, and the insight to hone their professional ability.

Professors, senior executives and administrators of colleges and universities:

- Who are interested in learning about and contributing to the discussion what's happening in the sustainability and energy management markets;
- Who want to build educational programs and teach the next wave of employees in this vibrant market sector

If That's You

The Environmental Leader 2016 Conference is all about current and emerging real-world challenges and the practical tools and solutions to help you meet them. What you'll take away are ready-to-go solutions that are tangible, replicable, measurable and transferable across multiple industry sectors.

Increase your knowledge by learning from commercial and industrial environment, sustainability, EHS and energy professionals who will share strategies and tools they use to achieve cost savings, reduce waste, increase business value, improve processes, and align and improve resource productivity.

Learn about program structures, tools and products, staffing and budgets, cost sharing, cost benefit analysis and inter-departmental collaboration. Better yet, you will walk away from each session with step-by-step processes, calculators, guides, new research reports and many more valuable takeaways.

Workshops, roundtables and sessions will address challenges related to:

- Materiality, transparency and reporting
- Current and future compliance issues
- Water conservation and wastewater management
- Waste management and reduction
- GHG reduction
- Energy management and efficiency, renewable energy sourcing
- and much more

Speakers

And more great leaders are coming on board! The full agenda will be available soon.
