2018 Global Economic Outlook: Gaining Momentum or Slowing Down?

Wednesday, November 8, 9 AM

REGISTER

Nouriel Roubini, Atsushi Nakajima, Emiliya Mychasuk

IN BRIEF

The global recovery continues on track as the U.S. sustains its steady growth, China maintains momentum based on sound development and Japan makes a moderate recovery. However, economic and political risks – or rather threats – are mounting: the Trump administration, China's looming slowdown, East Asian geopolitical tensions and the sluggish economic reforms in Japan. The changes in monetary policies by advanced countries also may harm financial markets. How should we deal with these challenges and analyze the global economic trends going into 2018? In this program, speakers discuss the forces shaping the global economy, their impact on economic growth, and prospects for the U.S., Japan and Asia.

Speakers:

Nouriel Roubini, Professor of Economics and International Business, New York University Stern School of Business; Chairman & Chief Executive Officer, Roubini Macro Associates, LLC

Atsushi Nakajima, Chairman, Research Institute of Economy, Trade and Industry

Moderator:

Emiliya Mychasuk, US Online News Editor, Financial Times
